Chance for Increase in Basic Retirement Pay Under Social Security Bright This Year

By EDOND LEBRETON

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chances of an increase in the basic retirement payment under Social Security appear to be bright this year.

Such an increase could be a by-product—and perhaps the only immediate result—of the continuing pressure for a federal old age health plan added to the Social Security System.

Another possible outcome would be a revamping of the present state-federal system of medical care for the aged to take in a broader income bracket and to de-emphasize what many critics regard as the welfare aspects of the program.

These were the prospects as the House Ways and Means Committee scheduled more closed-door discussions of the Social Security health care plan President Johnson backs—and of related matters, covering a broad field.

An increase in the retirement payment would fit in well with Johnson's antipoverty program and would not be likely to arouse anything like the opposition that has resisted every move to add health care to the Social Security System.

There has been no over-all increase in the old age retirement payment since Jan. 1, 1959. However, in August 1961, the minimum payment was increased from $33 to $40 a month. The monthly maximum for those fully covered now is $127 at age 65. Wives 65 or older receive half their husbands' benefits. Optional reduced payments may be had at ages between 62 and 65.

A majority of the Ways and Means Committee, which handles all Social Security legislation, is understood still to oppose the medical care plan.

But some of those who oppose it are known to be willing to consider an increase in the old age benefit, based on the argument that the slow but continuous increase in living costs has eroded the means of older persons dependent on Social Security.

Presumably, many members of Congress would welcome an opportunity to cast an election year vote "for the old folks," without becoming embroiled in the emotion-filled controversy over medical care.

Gets Life for Armed Robbery

NORTH VANCOUVER, B.C. (AP)—George Gray Leslie, 22, a gardener, has been sentenced to life imprisonment plus five strokes of the paddle on a charge of armed robbery.

Police said Leslie beat his employer, Dr. Walter Sproule, 72, with a hammer and ax in robbing him of $495 March 28.

Dr. Sproule, a dentist, is crippled. He is still in a hospital.

"The nature of this admitted attack on an old and crippled man shows a state of cruelty and lack of pity which is utterly incomprehensible to any ordinary person," Magistrate A.D. Poole told Leslie, who had pleaded guilty.

Mets Trade Duke Snider to Giants

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Mets have traded Duke Snider, veteran outfielder, to another National League team, presumably the San Francisco Giants, The Associated Press learned Tuesday.

No announcement has been made but it had been learned that Snider's name has been deleted from the Mets' opening day roster.

The Giants have been trying to land Snider since last summer. An offer of outfielder Matty Alou and cash by the Giants previously was turned down by the Mets.

Astronaut Training Is Interesting

By HAROLD R. WILLIAMS
HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—From cramped Gemini space capsules to the wilds of rattlesnake-infested southwest Texas—it's all in a day's work for this country's astronauts.

Fourteen American spacemen leave today on a three-day geological tour of Big Bend National Park. Manned Spacecraft Center officials said Maj. Virgil I. Grissom, 38, and Lt. Cmdr. John W. Young, 33, both chosen Monday as the first Gemini crew to man a spacecraft into space, were included.

The backup crew of Cmdr. Walter M. Schirra, 41, and Maj. Thomas P. Stafford, 33, also will be on the trip, said Howard Gibbons, Manned Spacecraft Center public affairs spokesman.

The four astronauts faced cameras and newsmen Monday after the announcement of their new assignment was made at the space agency by Dr. Robert R. Gilruth, director.

Today they were to be inspecting rocks and dodging snakes as they continued an intensive geological course designed to familiarize them with what they might expect on the moon.

The 14 latest named astronauts, Maj. L. Gordon Cooper Jr. and Lt. Cmdr. Alan B. Shepard Jr. made the Big Bend trek about a week ago. The astronauts toured the Grand Canyon last month.

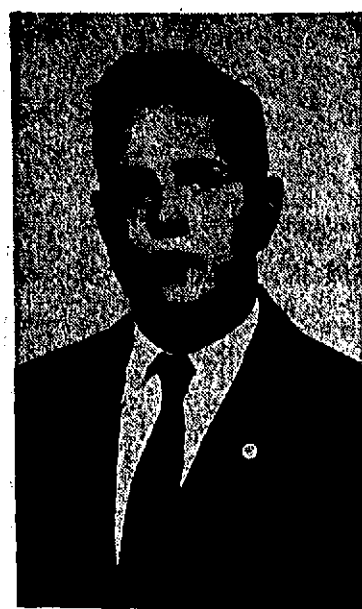

The naming of Grissom as pilot of the Gemini spacecraft and young as copilot slips the manned space program into high gear.

Project Gemini, named for a constellation of the twin stars Pollux and Castor, is a stepping stone to the moon project, Apollo.

Twelve flights are scheduled through February 1967, with 10 manned.

The Gemini program got under way last Wednesday with the firing into orbit of a spacecraft from Cape Kennedy, Fla.

A second unmanned shot is planned for August. The success of this test, a suborbital ballistic flight, will determine the target date for the first manned Gemini flight in November or December.

Minstrel Plays Thursday at Blevins

The premier of the annual Hope Kiwanis Club Minstrel will be at 8 p.m. Thursday at the Blevins High School Auditorium with six specialty acts highlighting the show.

The Minstrel will be presented in Hope at 8 p.m. Friday in the City Hall Auditorium.

All proceeds from the Blevins performance will go to Blevins High School and funds raised in Hope will be used for the Kiwanis Youth Program, according to Eddie Whitman, club president.

Delaine Bonds of Blevins will sing "Up a Lazy River" and "Some of These Days" for her specialty numbers.

Maxine White will sing "Sugar Blues" and "You Gotta See Mama Every Night" and Dana Simmons and Anita Hoggard will present "In a Little Teapot."

The Hope Key Club, high school service organization for boys sponsored by the Kiwanis Club, will give a skit and Bob Trout and Paul Coates will sing "Karon" and "This Land Is Your Land."

A Kiwanis trio — Mitch (R. C.) Lagrone, Al (Moon Pie) Graves and Andy (Short Stuff) Caldwell — will sing and play "This Train" and "Rock Island Line."

Kiwanians are selling tickets for the show and businessmen have purchased advertisements in the program. Tickets will be on sale at the auditorium for $1 for adults and .50 for students.

In addition to the specialty numbers, Kiwanians will sing several songs in the "circle."

Charge Follows Minor Accident

H. S. Dudley, Hope Rt. 2, was charged with leaving the scene of an accident yesterday by City Officer Ward and Jarvis. The incident occurred at the Bruner Ivory Handle Co.

Mr. Dudley backed into an auto owned by Red Fletcher. He told officers he didn't know he had backed into anything.

Croxton Quits Benton Co. Position

ROGERS, Ark. (AP) — Rep. Hardy Croxton of Benton County resigned as chairman of the Committee for Voter Registration Monday night, citing pressing business demands as the reason.

His announcement came after the committee filed a petition to place on the November general election ballot a proposed constitution amendment calling for a permanent voter registration bill.

He said he would continue to serve the committee's cause.

Croxton said the state Supreme Court's ruling Monday that no one can vote for state, county or local elections without having paid the poll tax should help the committee in its drive for a "singular voter registration system."

The court's ruling left the state with a so-called dual system for elections this year—poll tax payers can vote for all offices and those who do not pay the tax will vote only for federal offices.

Crucial Point in Railway, Union Talks

By NEIL GILBRIDE

WASHINGTON (AP) — Railroad bargaining talks which President Johnson hopes will avert an economy-crippling strike approach a crucial point today under tight White House security.

The talks between negotiators for 5 unions and nearly 200 railroads enter their fifth day since Johnson persuaded both sides to postpone a nationwide strike showdown early Friday.

Federal mediators are to report to Johnson Wednesday on the progress and effectiveness of the extraordinary talks so far.

Johnson will determine on the basis of the report whether any other steps are necessary to help the two sides seek a voluntary settlement.

All other regular procedures under the law for settling the long work-rules dispute have been exhausted in the past five years.

White House press secretary George Reedy, the sole official source of information on the talks, continued to refrain from describing the atmosphere of the bargaining discussions except to say that they are "in a state of active collective bargaining, issue by issue."

Johnson, who is keeping the talks near at hand so he can readily consult with the parties, did not drop in on Monday's session as he did the previous three days.

Lodge Assured of Top Spot in Oregon Vote

By GORDON G. MACNAB

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—The team that won in New Hampshire is hearing heady reports in Oregon as it prepares to try and shape an image of Henry Cabot Lodge as the Republican who can capture the presidency. "A little too heady," said David Goldberg, 34, Boston attorney and field director for the Draft Lodge campaign.

The team hasn't even started to work and already Lodge is in first place in some Oregon polls as well as in national samplings.

Pollster Louis Harris said his survey indicates Lodge is a big favorite among Oregon Republican voters and stands to gain a greater victory than he did in the New Hampshire presidential primary last month.

Harris' poll showed Lodge has 46 per cent of the Republican voters in Oregon, Richard M. Nixon 17, Sen. Barry Goldwater 14, Gov. Nelson Rockefeller 13, Gov. William Scranton 4 and Sen. Margaret Chase Smith 1. Harris listed 5 per cent of the voters as still undecided.

Lodge has won editorial endorsement of the Oregonian, the state's most widely circulated newspaper.

"We are pleased but not necessarily persuaded," Goldberg said. "If we had listened to the polls in New Hampshire we would have packed our bags and gone home. No one took us seriously."

Goldwater and Rockefeller, noted the swift rise in Lodge's popularity and told Oregonians they should demand that Lodge, U.S. ambassador to South Vietnam, come home tell his stand on issues.

Lodge has said he has no intention of coming home for the May 15 Oregon primary.

"His great character and ability are more relevant than specific stands," Goldberg said. "Foreign policy is the overriding issue, the one Republicans can use to beat President Johnson. The people recognize Lodge as a man they can trust on foreign affairs."

Goldberg thinks Lodge will come home before the Republican National Convention in July if he wins in Oregon.

Goldberg sits at a littered desk in the basement of the Draft Lodge headquarters in downtown Portland and appears calm amid a swirl of paper work. He has his two top New Hampshire office aides, Sally Saltonstall and Caroline William of Boston.

They are putting together a precinct-by-precinct organization that hopefully will ring the doorbell of every one of the 400,000 Republicans in Oregon.

Turkey Army in Cyprus Is Fired on

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP)—Turkey's army regulars on Cyprus were fired on today at their camp north of Nicosia. They threatened retaliation unless the shooting ceased, U.N. officials reported.

In Nicosia itself, the communal warfare between Greek and Turkish Cypriots erupted with new bloodshed. Turkish Cypriot snipers sprayed a crowded Greek Cypriot market place, killing at least one person and wounding two others.

A report to U.N. peace-keeping officials from the Turkish regulars said a burst from a light machine gun position was fired at their encampment at Ortakoy. The Turks said the firing came from Greek Cypriot positions at a race track southwest of the camp.

Like the Greek army contingent of 950 the Turkish force has kept out of the communal fighting. Both Greeks and Turks however, moved out of their encampments to camps near Nicosia after the Turkish and Greek Cypriot fighting broke out last December. The announced aims of the Turks was to protect the Turkish Cypriot minority if necessary.

Troopers of the U.N. peace force, along with Greek Cypriot police and guardsmen, moved into the market place quickly and began patrolling.

U.N. headquarters said officials were investigating the shooting and negotiating with both sides.

Rocket Blast at Cape Kennedy Injures Eight

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—Eight persons were injured, several seriously, today when a rocket engine being joined with a space payload ignited in a checkout building.

Initial reports said the rocket exploded. But the National Aeronautics and Space Administration used the word ignited in a statement. There was no immediate word on whether the five-foot-tall solid propellant rocket blew apart after the ignition.

A NASA spokesman said the accident occurred as an Orbiting Solar Observatory (OSO) was being mated with the third stage of a Delta rocket for a series of pre-launch checks in a building referred to as a spin-test facility.

The OSO was to have been launched next Tuesday to explore sun-earth relations. The spacecraft was damaged.

NASA said eight persons were injured, several seriously. They were rushed by Air Force ambulance to hospitals in nearby Cocoa Beach and Patrick Air Force Base.

Sidney Dagle was reported in critical condition at Cape Canaveral Hospital in Cocoa Beach. L.D. Gabel was reported satisfactory. The other six were taken to Patrick, where at least one was reported critical.

The Air Force reported "This is the first serious incident of its kind in 14 years of operations and over 1,400 missile launchings" at Cape Kennedy.

A total of 10 persons have died in accidents on the Cape since it began operation in 1950.

One died when a flare package aboard a Titan missile exploded during a pre-launch checkout June 14, 1960. Nine others received minor injuries in the accident.

Three men have been killed in falls from missile gantries and one in a fall from a ladder while servicing a Shark missile. Another fell to his death from a radio transmitting antenna. Two men died in auto accidents, one was electrocuted when a crane touched a power line, and a security guard was killed by lightning.

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—A rocket stage being mated to a space payload exploded today and some injuries were reported.

Initial details were sketchy, but the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said the explosion occurred as an Orbiting Solar Observatory was being joined with the third stage of a Delta rocket. The joining was taking place in a building on Cape Kennedy.

A NASA spokesman said there were no known fatalities but there was a possibility of some serious injuries. Eight or nine persons were reported in the building at the time.

The OSO was to have been launched next Tuesday to study mysteries of the sun.

Independent Poll Favors Rockefeller

BATESVILLE, Ark. (AP)—Sixty-three per cent of Independent countians who voted in a newspaper poll said they would vote for Winthrop Rockefeller over Gov. Orval E. Faubus in the November general election.

The poll was conducted by Paul Buchanan, managing editor of the Batesville Guard. Buchanan ran a questionnaire on the governorship and other political questions in his "Two Cents Worth" column.

The tally showed 208 votes for Rockefeller and 119 for Faubus. "The indications were that Rockefeller was popular in town but that Faubus was strongest in rural areas," Buchanan said today.

"We put a test box in a country store at Newark and Faubus won, 20 to 2," he added.

Buchanan also asked his readers whether they would vote for legalizing gambling at Hot Springs. The results: 175 said yes and 151 said no.

Those answering a poll favored a two-cent city cigarette tax, 168 to 137.

Independence County has not voted for a state Republican candidate in many generations, Buchanan said. But in the last three presidential elections, the county has given the GOP candidate a narrow margin. Independence County went narrowly for Richard Nixon and twice went into Eisenhower's column. Buchanan published the results of the poll in his column today.

Usual Aggression Charge Missing

MOSCOW (AP)—The usual charge of American aggression against Cuba was missing today from Communist party slogans published for the faithful to shout on May Day.

The Cuban slogan for last May Day, when Prime Minister Fidel Castro was the guest of honor, and for Revolution Day last November, expressed "fraternal greetings to the heroic people of Cuba, constructing socialism, selflessly fighting for freedom and independence of their motherland from aggressive encroachments of American imperialists."

The new May 1 slogan, published today in Pravda, the Communist party paper, dropped the reference to fighting the Americans.

A CHOICE OF ASSASSINS

THE STORY: Tony Malcolm is a derelict stranded in Spain. A small girl, playing with a rubber ball on the beach, makes his acquaintance. With alcoholic cunning, Tony plans to use her to obtain a bottle of wine.

II

The sun was a mile-high lance probing his skull. He couldn't think of anything to say; words skittered about like mice inside his blazing head. "I bought her a drink one night, that's the joke," he said, laughing weakly. "There were lots of us sitting around the Quita Pena, and I bought her a drink, and I said to your mommy, I said, 'Now you wait and see, one of these days you're going to buy me a bottle of wine, and you won't even know it.'" Malcolm stared at the little girl and blinked his eyes quickly, for her blonde body and blonde hair had begun to shimmer and twist before him in the maddening rays of the sun. It was as if a flaming curtain had fallen between them, consuming her small body before his eyes.

"Why is that funny?" Jenny asked him.

"It's a grown-up kind of joke," Malcolm said desperately. "But it would be very funny if you go to Manuel right now, and tell him you want him to give you—insist that he give you—Malcolm pounded a fist weakly on the sand. "—a bottle, a liter of wine for your mother and some of her friends. Then bring it to me. And it will be very funny, you see, when we tell her about it."

"I don't think you know my mother at all," Jenny said, and got deliberately to her feet. "I think you just want me to get a bottle of wine for you. Steal it for you, that's what it amounts to."

Malcolm tried with extreme care to gauge his need for a drink. He decided after laborious calculations that he was good for another hour at least, and that he might as well spend that time sitting quietly in the sun.

"Well, isn't that true?" Jenny asked hesitantly.

Malcolm raised his head and blinked his eyes, confused by the sound of her voice. He had thought she had gone away. "Truth?" he said in a thick puzzled voice. "I don't know any." The words were so soft and blurred that Jenny leaned forward in an attempt to understand them. Her complacent indignation was melting away. She blinked her eyes against sudden, stinging tears as she saw the flies buzzing about his dark head, and the drops of perspiration gleaming like precious jewels on his eyelashes.

"I'll get it for you," she said, and her voice trembled with pain and compassion. "I'll get the wine."

Malcolm swallowed with a great effort. "Yes, yes," he said. "A liter, remember. A liter of red. Hurry."

As she wheeled about and ran across the hot sand toward the cluster of beach umbrellas, Malcolm stared after her, hopefully and anxiously.

Jenny's mother said sharply, "Just where do you think you're going with that bottle of wine?"

Jenny stopped so abruptly that she almost lost her balance. Turning her head she saw her mother standing a dozen feet from her, at the end of the wooden foot—walk which led from the village onto the beach.

"Hi," Jenny said, with a bright, guilty smile.

Jenny's mother was named Coralee. She was a tall young woman with natural blonde hair and a thoughtlessly pretty face. She wore a high-crowned straw hat, flaring black sunglasses, and a bikini which was no more than a colorful welt iterranean port in the direction of Cyprus. Naval authorities described the sailing as a routine gunnery exercise.

Naval sources said 21 warships are participating in maneuvers under command of Adm. Ismail Sarikay 30 miles off the northern Cyprus coast. Live ammunition will be used on the exercise which will continue until April 17, the sources said.

The nearest point of Cyprus to the Turkish mainland—Anatolia—is 40 miles. Iskenderun is 100 miles northeast of the island.

across her brown, supping hips. She carried a book and a floppy beach bag with circular wooden handles.

"I asked you a question," she said irritably. "What are you doing with that bottle of wine? I've told you a dozen times, if I told you once, that I expect you to behave yourself when I leave you alone on the beach."

Coralee Davis was not in a particularly cheerful mood, and the spectacle of her child running about with a bottle of wine in her scrawny arms added sharply to the burden of her exasperation. She had eaten too much paella at lunch, and her siesta had been plagued with thick, sluggish dreams which left her with an irritating headache.

Jenny was saying something. "What's that?" her mother said sharply. "Speak up, for heaven's sake."

"I was taking it to him," Jenny said, nodding over the neck of the wine bottle toward Malcolm, who sat with his head on his crossed arms about 50 yards from them.

Coralee Davis looked suspiciously at the figure in the soiled white suit. Then she looked grimly in the opposite direction, toward the cluster of beach umbrellas and sunsoaked tourists, as if silently calling on them to witness her indignation.

"Did he give you the money to pay for it?"

"No, Mommy. He said he knew you. And that it was a joke for me to get it from Manuel," Jenny regretted having to tell the truth. She had wanted to help Malcolm. But now the price was too high. "I'm sorry," she said, putting a small catch in her voice. "But he said it was just a joke."

"The idea!" Coralee took the bottle from Jenny's arms, gripping it by the neck as if she wanted to strangle it. With her free hand she spun her daughter about and marched her helplessly toward Manuel's weather-beaten little bar.

Malcolm looked up then. His heart lurched heavily as he saw Jenny moving away from him, her slender body almost hidden by a tall blonde woman who was pushing her resolutely toward the tourists' area of the beach. He raised his hand and tried to call out to them, but he couldn't find the words he wanted in his spinning thoughts.

But by seven o'clock that night, through a stroke of pure luck, Malcolm was safely and comfortably drunk. He had left the beach at six to begin his rounds of the village bars, and had struck gold at his first stop, the Quita Pena. Without being asked, he had joined a table of Americans who were examining a German camera which a bearded young man named Jeff was thinking of buying. Malcolm had earned Jeff's gratitude—and four large brandies—by pointing out that the original lens had been replaced by an inferior make. "The leather case, the filter, and timers aren't important," he had said, making a desperate effort to speak clearly and concisely. "Without the original lens it's just a box, an engagement ring without a diamond."

Malcolm was not too surprised at his own alertness, nor by the bearded young man's gratitude. When he needed a drink badly he could usually trust some instinct or intuition to lead him to it.

It was one o'clock in the morning when Malcolm was ushered gently but firmly from the Bar Seville. He didn't care; he cared about nothing now, for he was thoroughly and invulnerably drunk, and he knew he would be able to sleep for hours on the warm beach. As he had hoped, poor Miguel had given him a bottle of wine, and when Antonio returned from supper, his disgust at his brother-in-law had taken the form of derisive generosity to Malcolm; he had placed a bottle of brandy on the bar and scornfully urged him to drink his fill on the house.

For the last time . . .

It was at the drinking fountain of the burros, where the street turned toward the beach, that Malcolm lost his footing and fell sprawling across the gutter.

When Malcolm opened his eyes the cool gray light of dawn was in the street, and he found himself looking into the open mouth of a dead fish. The fish was very small, a mere streak of silver in the filth of the gutter, but Malcolm's face was so close to it that he could see a faint pearly light behind its eyes and the beautifully etched shadings of its body. Then a voice asked:

"Man, what happened?"

News Agency Errors, Mr. K Not Dead

By PETER REHAK

HAMBURG, Germany (AP)—A West German news agency apologized today for circulating an erroneous report that Soviet Premier Khrushchev had died.

The report Monday night caused a sensation around the world and sent stock prices tumbling on the U.S. Pacific Coast before the director-general of Tass, the Soviet news agency, termed it "rubbish."

Tass reported today that Khrushchev had begun talks this morning with Polish Communist Party Secretary Wladyslaw Gomulka and Premier Jozef Cyrankiewicz, who arrived in Moscow Monday from Warsaw.

DPA—Deutsche Presse Agentur—the West German news agency—announced it is making a full investigation to determine how the erroneous dispatch got onto its wires.

Staff members connected with the affair have been suspended, a statement said. A spokesman said all those involved were in the agency's head office in Hamburg.

The agency said it received an inquiry by Teletype from a West German radio station quoting what purported to be a Tass story on the death of Khrushchev. The inquiry was said to have originated in the Bonn office of a Japanese newspaper.

DPA moved a flash saying "Khrushchev dead" at 9:49 p.m.—3:48 p.m. EST.

This was followed five minutes later by a one-paragraph story under a Moscow dateline which said:

"Soviet Premier Khrushchev died suddenly Monday at 2019 CET—2:19 p.m. EST—four days before his 70th birthday as a result of an acute hepocapalitis. (according to Tass)."

A number of European news agencies that have an exchange agreement with DPA picked up the dispatch. All quoted the German agency as the source.

At 10:12 p.m. DPA issued a note to editors to withhold the story. It said "the matter was still being looked into."

The agency then issued a statement that an error had been made due to a garbled conversation between a Japanese journalist and an employee of Tass in Moscow.

DPA said the Japanese journalist had inquired why an English-language Tass report on a speech Monday night by the Soviet premier was not being completed. He apparently misunderstood the answer given to him in Russian, DPA said.

One story circulating in Moscow was that the Japanese correspondent was told the broadcast had stopped because the story or the circuit was dead and he understood that Khrushchev was dead. But Japanese correspondents in Moscow said they had sent no such report.

"Up to now," DPA said today, "it is not clear what connection there is between a call that a Japanese correspondent in Moscow made to Tass about an interruption of the Soviet agency's English language service and the message which contains the time and cause of Khrushchev's death."

Cuban Coins Have All But Disappeared

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—The Cuban Economists Association in exile said today that virtually all coins have disappeared from circulation in Cuba.

Jose Alvarez Diaz, president of the association, said the Cuban government announced last February it planned to recall 70 million pesos in coins and currency from circulation to combat inflation.

He said the government is getting 20 million pesos worth of coins of lighter metal to replace those withdrawn.

Cubans hoarded coins as the peso fell in value, the economists reported. The peso, worth a dollar before the Castro regime and still officially pegged at a dollar, is worth little outside Cuba.

Farm Wage Rates Show Increase

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Agriculture Department reported today that farm wage rates on American farms on April 1 averaged 82.7 cents an hour compared with 79.9 cents a year earlier.

The rates ranged from a high of $1.37 an hour in the state of Washington to a low of 47.8 cents in South Carolina. By regions, the rates averaged $1.081 in New England, 85.7 cents in mid-Atlantic states, 78.1 cents in East North Central states, 83.6 cents in West North Central states, 65.5 cents in South Atlantic states, 51.9 cents in East South Central states, 72.3 cents in West South Central states, 92.5 cents in Rocky Mountain states and $1.312 in Pacific Coast states.

Law Won't Apply to the 'Riders'

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—The city's special civil rights counsel says a federal court order that police can't arrest Negroes who integrate transportation facilities won't prevent authorities from acting in the event of another surge of "freedom riders."

Attorney Tom Watkins said the freedom rider movement "was an organized thing to stir up trouble."

U.S. Dist. Judge Sidney Mize, of Tass in Moscow.

The President also continued to avoid any reference to possible emergency legislation as a last resort.

Reedy emphasized again that Wednesday's report from the mediators, headed by Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz, is to give Johnson a chance to consider ways to further the collective bargaining process if necessary.

Reedy previously had stated that the White House does not consider legislation part of the free collective bargaining process.

A similar nationwide strike threat last year led to an emergency law providing for a combination of compulsory arbitration and continued negotiation of the tangled dispute.

The law, which resulted in a federal arbitration ruling that the railroads could eliminate some 30,000 firemen's jobs, failed to settle the dispute.

The unions are appealing the arbitration ruling and the constitutionality of the emergency law to the Supreme Court.

The current crisis, which could erupt into another strike showdown when the 15-day postponement expires at 12:01 a.m. April 25, is over the issues which Congress left to negotiation between the unions and the railroads.

These include the railroads' proposal to revise the complicated wage structure based on mileage and length of time worked and to change job classifications which could eliminate many employees.

The unions have countered with demands for wage structure changes which would insure them overtime, holiday and night differential pay and paid expenses on overnight trips away from home.

The five unions represent about 200,000 engineers, firemen, switchmen, conductors, brakemen and other train operating workers.

75, a native of Mississippi, issued a sweeping injunction Monday barring Jackson police from arresting Negroes who defy state laws requiring segregation of public bus, railroad and airport facilities.

The case had been before Judge Mize since 1961 when the flooded Mississippi to test segregation practices.

WHAT WOULD HAPPEN IF WOMEN TOLD TRUTH? By DR. JOYCE BROTHERS

Dear Dr. Brothers: I'm a very popular girl, aged 20. At a recent party, all the fellows were joking about the fact that women are "devious," as they termed it. And last night my date was telling me about the girl he used to go with, how she never said "yes" but never quite said "no"; it was always "maybe." Now he's a special young man. I've only dated him a couple of times. What would happen if I actually told him that my future plans were not really what I said they were—that I didn't want to become an air stewardess, that I wanted to become his wife?

I'd like to be honest with men. I just wonder if it would succeed. —M. J. B.

There's A Purpose

Dear M. J. B.: The man who accuses women of being dishonest and devious usually wants to believe this so he can justify his own wishes. It is, in addition, a wonderful attention-getter.

If everyone at the party is busy and preoccupied, all this young man has to do is make the statement, "Every woman has her price."

If this does not cause a commotion, he can state with a slight sneer, "Every woman is a parasite for whom the husband must work himself to death."

In part, this young man is simply baiting any young woman he comes into contact with. She's falling for his bait if she protests, "oh no, we're not like that." Because, of course, the young cynic will not believe her. She'll have to spend time with him to prove she's not like that, and her only way of proving it is somehow by allowing him to make love to her.

If she refuses, he will soon lose interest, because the cynic is constantly looking for examples to prove his point.

Cynicism is a complicated inner defense. When a young man wars the make of cynicism toward women, it usually means he's filled with ambivalent feelings for them. Simultaneously, he feels love and hate, contempt and respect, attraction and repulsion.

When he makes these cynical statements, he's merely wanting to find people who feel the same way he does.

However, oddly enough, cynics, in contradiction to their off-handed statements, become terribly emotional over what they call "the facts of life." If every woman is, as the cynic declares, capable of every sort of underhanded trick, then why complain? If dishonesty is a regular part of the nature of women, then accept it, as you accept gravity.

But both the men and the women who claim they are cynics never accept this. They are always ready to fling dramatically before you what they claim is a fact of life.

One Of Many Facts

Dishonesty between the sexes is not "the" fact of life. It is simply one fact of life. An adult who refuses to admit the existence of ruthlessness, cruelty, and selfishness is simply suspect of deliberately cultivating naivete. It is a common masochistic trick to shut one's eyes to the warning signs of cruelty in others, so as to be able to experience greater disappointment when hurt.

Dishonesty exists on the part of both men and women, but to declare that all men or all women are dishonest is fallacious. Tact, patience, and subtlety are not considered forms of dishonesty.

The man who bursts forth impulsively, "I love you," is not necessarily more sincere about his feelings than the man who takes awhile to ascertain his true feelings.

Instead of proving honesty, this only proves immaturity. If you tell this young man that you want to marry him, when you've only dated him a couple of times, you'll be proving much more than your honesty. You'll be proving that after a few dates, you're ready to commit yourself to a life-long partner.

It would indicate that you have no regard for his thoughts and feelings, since he's made no sign that his thoughts and feelings are in the same vein. And you would be deliberately exposing yourself to humiliation

Television and Radio

NEW YORK (AP)—The wonderful world of the carnival where the life and even the language is strange and foreign, was explored Sunday night by NBC with affection, humor and imaginative camera work.

The armchair visitor to a half dozen of the nation's top carnivals picked up a smattering of a culture and considerable incidental information never encountered on "Continental Classroom."

For instance our guide, veteran carnival performer Sally Rand, said that fire eaters always breathe out while doing their act and that they never use grease inside their mouths lest they burn themselves. She said sword swallowing is "really very easy," provided you can make a straight line between mouth and stomach and conquer a tendency to gag.

The amusing hour was a short course on one of the oldest forms of show business still flourishing.

CBS' excellent coverage of the final holes of the Masters golf tournament live from Augusta, Ga., showed a lot of wonderful golf, but the big lead that winner Arnold Palmer had built up took away any suspense it might have had. At the end, the big cliff-hanger was whether Palmer would break the course record. He didn't.

It wound up, unfortunately for the CBS staff, with almost a half hour of air time left. They filled it with post-mortem interviews, always anticlimactic.

The most dismally anticlimactic program of the weekend was ABC's showing of film taken of the Sonny Liston-Cassius Clay fight in February. "Wide World of Sports" dragged the six rounds out to a half hour by first showing still pictures of the fight along with comment, then the fight with pauses to show portions in slow motion. And all with a lot of talk.

Portugal Looks for French Aid

LISBON, Portugal (AP)—A European diplomat said today Portugal's agreement to permit France to erect a missile tracking station in the Azores "was dropped like a bomb and I don't think it was fair to the Americans."

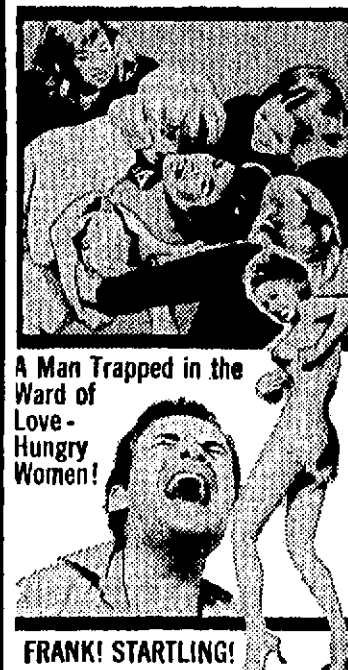

Some Western diplomats in this Portuguese capital thought the decision meant a swing away from the United States toward France.

An American diplomat remarked that for decades Portugal had first turned to Britain, then to the United States, for alliance and protection. Now it would seem it is looking away from them and toward France and Germany, he said. West Germany's air force was granted training facilities last year at Beja, in southern Portugal.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) - Actor Peter Sellers is improving steadily after a severe heart attack and has been moved out of the intensive care unit at Cedars of Lebanon Hospital.

Sellers, 38, was moved into a regular hospital room Monday. Attendants said, however, that he still is in serious condition.

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP) - Dr. Edward Teller, noted nuclear physicist, says travelers to the moon might be able to get water from rock by exploding atomic devices beneath the surface.

Teller, who suggested the possibility in a speech at Texas A&M University, even had a name for the project: "Operation Moses."

WASHINGTON (AP) - Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson and a capacity audience of Washington notables turned out at the National Theater Monday night for a special performance of "The Comedy of Errors" by the Royal Shakespeare Company of Britain.

The performance was sponsored by members of the President's Cabinet to mark the 400th anniversary of Shakespeare's birth.

President Johnson did not attend.

Cudes Retain Custody of Children

MENA, Ark. (AP) - Mr. and Mrs. Archie Cude gained custody of three of their children Monday, until legal aspects of their state versus religious beliefs suit are settled.

The settlement will come from the Arkansas Supreme Court, which ruled last Monday that the children must be given over to the state Welfare Department because Cude refused to have them vaccinated against smallpox.

Such vaccination is required prior to attendance in Arkansas public schools and Arkansas has a compulsory school attendance law.

Cude said Monday he will not appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court.

The children were taken from Cude last Monday and spent the remainder of the week in the governor's mansion. Gov. Orval E. Faubus initiated a move to get them back to their parents until the case was settled.

The Supreme Court refused to reverse its mandate that the children could be taken from their parents, but allowed Chancellor Wesley Howard to determine where the youths would stay until litigation in the case is settled.

Howard ruled in a hearing Monday they could stay with their parents.

Cude's only state relief now is an appeal to the Supreme Court to reverse its decision.

Nabors Shaw, attorney for Cude, said he would probably do that next week.

Houston Takes Redlegs in the Opener

By MIKE RATHET

Associated Press Sports Writer

"There was a little extra reason for this one," said Houston pitcher Ken Johnson.

"You mean Jim?" someone asked.

"I thought about him right before the game," John said. "All the fellows did."

There was Johnson, pitching two-hit ball for eight innings before he tired. There was Nellie Fox with a key two run single. There was Jim Wynn lashing a decisive two-run homer.

And here were the rest of the Colts — their shirt sleeves striped with black out of respect for teammate Jim Umbricht — opening the National League season Monday by beating Cincinnati 6-2.

Umbricht died of cancer last week. The opening day pitching assignment went to Johnson, Umbricht's roommate on road trips last year.

The Colts provided Johnson with a 6-0 lead, tagging Reds' starter Jim Maloney, a 23-game winner last season, for three runs in the fifth and another three in the sixth.

The Johnson-Woodeshick combination wound up with a five-hitter. It was, however, not the best pitching performance of the day. That was turned in at Washington in the presidential opener as Ken McBride and Julio Navarro of the Los Angeles Angels combined for a one-hit, 4-0 victory over Washington.

The Colts and Reds had the National League stage to themselves Monday, continuing an opening day tradition in Cincinnati that dates back to 1892, but were idle today as the rest of the league got under way.

The world champion Los Angeles Dodgers will be at home, sending Sandy Koufax, 25-5, against Ernie Broglio, 18-8, and the St. Louis Cardinals in a night game.

Milwaukee and Warren Spahn, 23-7, open at San Francisco, with Juan Marichal, 23-8, on the mound for the Giants. Chicago will start Larry Jackson, 14-18, at Pittsburgh against Bob Veale, 5-2, and in another night game, Al Jackson will go for the New York Mets at Philadelphia, pitching against Dennis Bennett, 9-5.

Dakota Team Beats A-State

JONESBORO, Ark. (AP) — The University of North Dakota opened its baseball season on a happy note here Monday, whipping Arkansas State 5-3.

It was the Indians' 18th game, and pushed their record to 7-11.

Arkansas State outhit the Sox 7-5. The victory went to Tom Kurtli, who gave up five hits over six innings. Ivan Jackson was the losing hurler.

Johnson Has Pretty Fair Pitching Arm

By FRANK CORMIER

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson displayed a strong right arm and a zest or pop-corn as he helped inaugurate the 1964 baseball season.

The President sat through the full nine innings of Monday's opening game, although his attention often wandered. Thousands of other fans lacked the President's stamina and began flocking to the exits after the seven inning.

In truth, there was little except tradition to keep Johnson in his seat. The 4-0 shutout of the Washington Senators by the Los Angeles Angels was a discouraging sight for hometown fans.

Tradition, of course, brought Johnson to D.C. Stadium in the first place. A president is expected to throw out the first ball of the season and this bit of ceremony becomes the more imperative in an election year.

Arriving five minutes behind schedule for his big moment, Johnson donned a fielder's glove, then waggled his shoulders to loosen the muscles before letting fly with a fast, looping pitch that bounced off several gloves before it was run to earth in a wild scramble by Sally Parker, a coach for the Angels.

The President pitched out a second ball for the benefit of photographers, this one being speared by pitcher Bennie Daniels of the Senators.

Johnson, coattail and hatless despite a threatening overcast, sat between Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield of Montana and House Speaker John W. McCormack of Massachusetts for a half-inning. Then he moved to the right to sit between Senate Republican leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois and House Republican leader Charles A. Halleck of Indiana.

This bipartisan trio was deep in conversation for much of the next two innings, pausing occasionally to watch the game.

Then came a public address announcement of a Senate quorum call in the civil rights debate.

Sen. Humbert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., sitting behind Johnson, threw his hands into the air in a gesture of resignation and headed for the exit. Dirksen, Mansfield and Sen. George A. Smathers, D-Fla., and George D. Aiken, R-Vt., followed.

Johnson stood, grinning, and sped them on their way with a handshake. They never returned.

Deserted by Dirksen, Johnson moved back to a seat beside McCormack and spent much of the rest of the game munching peanuts and popcorn—notably popcorn.

One of the few times Johnson displayed real enthusiasm for events on the diamond was in the second inning when the Senators' third baseman, John Kennedy, speared a hot grounder on the dead run. Johnson raised his hands in front of his face and clapped eagerly.

Finley Forced to Cut Home Run Porch

By JIM VAN VALKENBURG

Associated Press Sports Writer

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Owner Charles O. Finley was forced to cut his Kansas City home run porch in half, but he vows to carry on his fight against the cozy foul lines in Yankee Stadium by asking the support of other major league owners.

"Only one owner is a member of the Baseball Rules Committee," Finley said Monday. "The others are, in effect, employees."

"They'll never change the rule to bring the Yankees in line for the first time in 40 years unless the owners tell 'em to do it."

Finley said he would demolish his "pennant porch" at the insistence of Ford Frick, commissioner of baseball, and Joe Cronin, president of the American League.

But he added he would continue his protest by erecting a "one-half pennant porch," also green and yellow with those words painted on the front of the scoreboard fence. It will have some 300 temporary seats behind it, like the old one. And it'll be 44 inches high, same as the wall in right field at New York.

"The only difference will be it will be entirely behind the 325-foot limit," Finley said. "The Yankees have a 296 distance to right and 301 to left, with a 51-inch wall in left."

"Why in the world can't the Yankees be made to eliminate the cheap homer with foul pole screens and conform to same rules the other clubs must conform to?"

Finley criticized Frick and Cronin "for allowing the Yankees to have grossly unfair advantages over the other clubs, leading to their domination of the American League."

The outspoken A's owner cited figures showing the Yanks have averaged 76 homers to 47 for their foes the past 31 years in the Yankee Stadium. He insisted visiting pitchers can't adjust to the oddly shaped stadium, with its short foul lines and vast areas in the rest of the outfield.

"The Yanks have dominated the league with 21 pennants in 2 years and this is why the balanced National League outdrew the AL by two million fans last year," Finley declared.

"The short foul lines are worth 10 victories a year to the Yanks," he said, "and the half-porch will be worth five to the A's."

"We'll keep close track of it during the season."

Yogi Era as Manager Starts With Yankees

By BOB GREEN

Associated Press Sports Writer

The Berra era starts officially Wednesday.

And pore ol'Yogi, freshman manager of the New York Yankees, has to be a loser. In fact, he's already lost his opening day bout with the weatherman.

The stumpy ex-catcher was to have taken over as the dugout director today but after an all-night rain the Yankees' season's inaugural with the Boston Red Sox was postponed until Wednesday.

So the baseball world must wait another day for the debut of Lawrence Peter Berra, manager.

If he wins the American League pennant—and the Las Vegas quotation has him an odds-on 2-5 choice to do so—the skeptics will merely say:

"With that talent your grandmother could manage them to the pennant."

And should he lose—that is, finish anywhere but far in front—along will come the cry:

"Man, but didn't ol' Yogi foul up a great ball club?"

He's even starting a half-game back, since the Los Angeles Angels got a jump on the rest of the league with a 4-0 decision in the traditional presidential opener over the Senators at Washington Monday.

Yogi, however, is undisputed. In fact, he's probably the most undismayed major league manager who ever lived.

He has Whitey Ford down to pitch today's opener against the Boston Red Sox at Yankee Stadium.

And he and Ford, who is doubling as the pitching coach, have themselves a little black book in which they've written down starting pitching assignments for 161 other games this year.

Which is a little optimistic, even for the Yankees.

As is Berra's pre-season pronouncement:

"We'll win it. We'll win even if Mantle doesn't play 100 games. There are no ifs, ands or Mantle or Maris or anything. We've got the best eight starters and the best pitching in the league. We'll win."

If they do, it'll be the fifth straight under three managers, Casey Stengel, Ralph Houk and Berra, who succeeded Houk at the close of last season.

Yogi will go with roughly the same team that won for Houk, then lost to the Los Angeles Dodgers and Sandy Koufax in four straight in the World Series.

Ford, 21-7 last season, will be opposed by Boston's sturdy Bill Monbouquette, a right-hander who was 20-10 in 1963, and a line-up that includes rookie outfielder Tony Conigliaro, a top prospect.

President Johnson opened the season with the traditional ball-throwing ceremony at Washington. He was followed by Los Angeles' Ken McBride and Julio Navarro, who did a bit of ball throwing, too. In fact, they allowed the hapless Senators just one hit between them, a double by losing pitcher Claude Osteen, off McBride in the third.

Navarro came on when McBride tired in the seventh. A two-run double by Lee Thomas

He Makes the Yank Stadium as a Red Sox

By JOE REICHLER

Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A year ago Tony Conigliaro dreamed a beautiful dream . . . the kind only teen-agers dream.

He dreamed he was playing center field at Yankee Stadium, in the spot followed by his idol, Joe DiMaggio.

The dream has turned to reality for Conigliaro but the boy, who turned 19 last January, finds it difficult to believe.

"If I'm still dreaming," he said today, "please don't wake me."

The youngster's feelings are easy to understand. Only last June, he was attending St. Mary's High in Lynn, Mass. Ten months later, he not only was wearing a big league uniform but appearing at Yankee Stadium in his first major league game as the Boston Red Sox regular center fielder.

Conigliaro got his first look at Yankee Stadium Monday as the Red Sox took a brief workout before today's opener against the New York Yankees. His impression was typical.

"Gee, it's huge, isn't it?" he said.

The youngster stepped out of high school uniform into a professional garment of the Wellesville Red Sox and proceeded to lead the New York-Penn League in batting with a mark of .363.

His slugging feats, including 24 home runs in 83 games, earned him the Most Valuable Player and Rookie of the Year awards.

Explaining how Conigliaro beat out older and more experienced rivals for the regular center field job, Red Sox Manager Johnny Pesky said:

"He just did everything we asked him to. He ran well, he fielded well, he threw well and he hit better than anybody else. And with power. What more can you expect?"

Yogi Berra, the Yankee manager, raised his eyebrows in surprise when he was told of the newcomer in the Red Sox opening day line-up.

"Coni . . . Coni . . . Conigliaro, who's he? oYogi asked.

"He's a first-year kid from the New England area," said a Boston reporter. "He's only 19 bats right-handed, stands 6-foot-3 and weighs about 175 to 180 pounds."

"He's a skinny kid, ain't he?" asked Berra.

"So were Ted Williams and Joe DiMaggio when they broke in," was the reply.

was the big Angel hit.

In the National League, a two-run homer by Jim Wynn helped the Houston Colts to a 6-3 triumph at Cincinnati.

The rest of the teams open today with Baltimore's Milt Pappas, 16-9, going against last year's American League rookie of the year, Gary Peters, 19-8, at Chicago; veteran Camilo Pascual, 21-9, of Minnesota against the Twins' Jim Grant, 13-14, at Cleveland; and Kansas City's Orlando Pena, 12-20, vs. Phil Regan, 15-9, at Detroit.

Registration Ballot Title Is Approved

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Sponsors of a voter registration amendment got approval of the ballot title from the attorney general today and prepared to start circulating petitions Wednesday to get it on the November election ballot.

Asst. Atty. Gen. Jack Lessenberry delivered the approved petition to Mrs. Catherine Hamilton and Mrs. Laura Lafferty, both of Little Rock, representatives of the Committee for Voter Registration.

The committee is sponsoring the amendment which would abolish the poll tax as a requirement for voting and set up a permanent system of voter registration.

Mrs. Hamilton said the committee needs 35,000 signatures on its petitions by the first week in July to get the measure on the ballot.

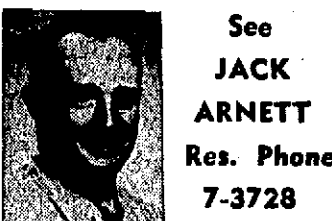

Atty. Gen. Bruce Bennett changed the popular name of the amendment from "Arkansas Amendment for Voter Registration" as the committee proposed to "Arkansas Amendment for Voter Registration Without Poll Tax Payment."

Bennett who was making a speech in Jonesboro, explained in a letter that he felt the amended popular name more clearly specified what the proposed amendment does.

Mrs. Lafferty said that the committee will meet at 9 a.m., Wednesday with representatives of the League of Women Voters and the Arkansas Association of University Women and other groups interested in adoption of the amendment to kick off the petition campaign.

Masterpiece at World's Fair

NEW YORK (AP) — Michelangelo's Pieta, one of the most perfect marble masterpieces of all time, arrived today aboard the liner Cristoforo Colombo en route to the New York World's Fair.

The Pieta was encased in a cushioned package. The 465-year-old work was insured for $6 million for its trip.

Two years ago, Pope John XXIII promised Francis Cardinal Spellman that the statue would be loaned for the Vatican Pavilion at the fair.

The Pieta, which represents Mary grieving over the body of Christ, was completed by Michelangelo when he was 24.
